We all have a sense of the difference between those who get wiser with experience and those who simply get older, but what really makes that difference possible?

Jennifer uses her background as a teacher, writer, researcher and coach to help individuals and teams to transform themselves and their organisations. In this interactive day-long session, she will provide a rich overview of how to use theories of adult development as a key coaching support tool.

YOU WILL LEARN:

- the patterns of adult growth and development—and how to recognise them in your clients and yourself
- the implications for different adult developmental spaces on the leadership and coaching journey
- key questions and practices that make coaching sessions transformational for clients.
